There was talk of kids, vacation plans and retirement, and the solutions that would make those dreams reality.

Nearly five decades later it's still about relationships. Today, Symetra Life remains committed to selling life insurance, annuities, retirement plans and employee benefits through our network of over 20,000 independent insurance agents and financial advisors across the country. Building strong relationships with our business partners allows us to innovate without losing focus on what matters most, helping families and businesses achieve financial security.
